is as far as those with full-fledged wisdom think ever get.

The keynote of our class is (A. Miner) and it is well that it happened so, for we are all fond of it. But we deny ourselves the privilege of hearing it as much as we would like, for fear of putting too much (strain) upon a thing so delicate.

It is often said that a pound's a pound the world around, so is a (peck) a (peck). Miss Lily Peck can appreciate this fact, for compared to the rest of us she is only the size of a Lilliputian.

Of Miss Phelps it would be enough to say that she is one of the much-abused historians. That shows her self-sacrificing disposition. But when you hear that she is sometimes used as a force for good, you will say, "Well, I don't wish to have you all weeping, so I will tell you what I think. She must be an angel cake!

Miss Rentz goes by the maxim "Know Thyself" and "Study Nature." This would point to her as a philosopher, and she is. But for all that, she is very easily led. I remember distinctly one day last year, after the rest had decided to go to the city, she suddenly in led by a chameleon, who later ran away and left poor Lulu "all a-mourning." And these were the words she was heard to say:

"Ah me! what shall I do?"

My chameleon's gone;

I had but one—

Ohi what will my mother say?

Miss Seely is considered a model girl by all of us. Still she suffers with most of us, so we are told by one who knows, from atonism, for which there is no cure and I speak from authority.

Miss Starrs is a very pretty lunary with a period of twenty-four hours, which, as you will understand, is rapid. Although it is rather unusual, her comparison is called by a distinct name, which is Relly. These two are a great addition to those of our class who study history. Miss Starrs are partial to the letters H. H. S. and descended so early one day as to place them on the back of Relly, who bore the "greatest thrust upon her" as becomes the companions of brilliant (Starrs). After this miracle they shone out brightly for a moment and were then lost in the depths of the Milky Way, for it was lunch time.

What is it that I like? And yet tail, a tail, a tail, a tail, a tail?

That's right, but how did you guess that it meant Mabel Short, the class conundrum? Sometimes she says strange and unheard-of things. One of them ran like this: "You'd better not have Miss Maltby as historian, for she'll laugh at all her own jokes. It stuck me at the time that Miss Short must be a hedgehog or something of herself. But I managed my mind when I caught her the other day laughing at nothing.

So maybe she will laugh at this.

It gives me great pleasure to be able to congratulate Miss Sperry upon her narrow escape. She was a long way adrift when (hailed) in by a friendly hand and we, trust, safely anchored. It is my impression that the next time she will drift too far.

Miss Williams has little admiration for the nobility, it seems, by her choice of language while speaking of them. For instance, she says: "The prince threw himself into the wagon at once." If it were not for the energy which she gave to him one would think that the "prince" must be some new sort of meal-pag.

But, but not least, come the two Whites, who represent the prevailing color of our class and, in fact, the long and the short of the whole thing. So if there is anything else you would like to know concerning us you must apply to one of these two. Take my advice and make your application to the first one, or the other, be it a great advice may brighten up by descending the stairs of a little finger. It takes pluck to perform a (feat) like that.

And now, classmates, although we feel that our shortcomings are many, still we have outwitted any other class in the fact that before our graduation night we are become famous.

The exercises closed with the singing of the American hymns by the class.

The exercises for the day were very happy and contained on the first page a unique good lettering the class motto, "Non Quis, Sed Quid."

The singing which was under the leadership of Prof. Jepson was especially excellent this year, and reflects great credit on his skill and ability in training his pupils. The chorus selections as well as the quartet showed careful and sidious planning.

Miss Little Nor sang a solo in "The American Hymn" very beautifully.

The floral gifts to each speaker would have gratified the heart to any prima donna. Mammoth bouquets and baskets were sent from Champion's and Moore's, and in addition there were numerous gifts from private gardens. There were roses and carnations for Mr. Williams, a big basket of carnations and a bouquet of roses for Mrs. Clark and several bouquets of white and red roses for Miss Phelps, Miss Sherman, Miss Griggs and Miss Maltby.

The class officers are as follows: President, Charles Frederick Williams; secretary, John Leo Gilson; treasurer, William Bloomfield Starweather. Class day committee: Miss Nettie Ellen Moore, Miss Janet Maude Perdue, Miss Gertrude Louise Holbrook, Miss Marie May Sharp, Miss Albert Benjamin Merrells, (chairman), Albert Norton Butler, Henry Hinkley Rodman, George Stephen Manning, Victor Alexander Kowalewski.

The class oration by Howard Curtis Meserve was eloquently delivered and reflected great credit on the speaker. It was as follows:

CLASS ORATION BY HOWARD CURTIS MESERVE.

None Quis Sed Quid.

There are periods in everyone's history fraught with an interest deep, intense and peculiar. There are times when hope is strongest and fancy most active, when the heart is lightest and expectations most sanguine. To ourselves such is the present occasion. We stand as on a gentle eminence from which we can retrospect the past, survey the present and look hopefully forward to the future.

In the great drama of human life each one of us has two parts, and is in constant danger of being misled by his own destiny and the architect of his own fortune. At the gateway of life each soul finds as it were a block of rough marble, a chisel and mallet, placed at his disposal by an unseen messenger. Time is the marble, the chisel and mallet are ability and opportunity. The artist is the youth, the sculptor, his character as he will. It rests with the workman whether the piece of marble shall be formed into a horse-block or carved into an Apollo, a Psyche, or a Venus de Melos.

to discover it is yours if you choose. It develops a spiritual form more beautiful than any of these, instinct with immortal life, and radiant with all the glory of character.

The great object of the earnest, ambitious student is to form for himself such a character. He desires to prepare himself for influence, for usefulness, for a high position among the people of his age, and, having ascertained his part here, leave behind him an example that shall be imitated, and a memory that shall be cherished. To what better theme, then, can I call your attention, than to an analysis of that character which will command the greatest amount of influence in life, and secure the affectionate remembrance of posterity and of men, his subject.

The first element of such a character is decision. And decision does everything; 'twas this that won the battles of Australitis and Marengo for Napoleon, and it was a want of this same constituent of character that gave Waterloo to Wellington.

"This decision that makes the scholar and the man of influence; and in any undertaking the task is half done and the result half accomplished when the resolution is firmly established.

Do you aspire to distinction? Then be decided in regard to the profession to which you will bend your energies. When you have closely studied yourself and moulded your mind, when you have acquainted yourself with the difficulties to be conquered, then make your decision, and, if you would win success, follow that course to which duty calls and inclination leads. And whatever profession you may choose, fix your ideal high, and spend all your thoughts on all your energies in attaining the hoped-for prize.

The second element of an influential character is independence, that manly firmness which causes a person to be independent in his opinions, and to think, reason, and decide for himself. Indeed an individual must venture to be independent in his course of conduct as well as in his sentiments; for an obsequious imitator can never be a student and a noble mind will soon to follow in the steps of another.

This independence or self-reliance will need the soul's utmost energies, and it will encourage the youth to efforts from which the dependent and undecided would shrink with dismay. The young man does not know how much he is capable of until he has made the proof of trial. And let him remember that personal efforts will exert him as nothing else can. Wealth may favor him and fortune smile on him, but nothing can or will be accomplished unless he himself dares to overcome the difficulties that present themselves. He must not wait for roads to be paved for him, but he must be his own explorer and pave it himself. "He who has battled," says Carlyle, "were it only with poverty and his soul will be found stronger and more alert than he who could stay at home after the battle, concealed among the provision wagons or even rest unwatchfully 'abiding by the stuff.'"

Grant's campaign before Richmond and his characteristic remark, "I shall fight it out on this line if it takes all summer," suggest another constituent of an efficient character, namely: Unshakable perseverance. It is a lesson drawn by experience, but lately earned, that nothing can be attained without effort and persistent endeavor. Without this tract of character Prescott would not have given his great histories to the world; Edison would not have electrified the earth with his inventions.

Often times the beginner, when pursuing the works of distinguished writers, deplores his own inability. But did he but persevere, his soul will be found stronger and more alert than he who never took to it. Gibbon worked twenty years on his "Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire." Noah Webster spent thirty-six years on his dictionary. The words of Longfellow well describe this tenacity of purpose: "The divine insistence of noble minds, That never falters nor abates, But labors and endures and waits Till all that it foresees it shall, And then it canopies it, creates." "Perseverentia omnia vincit" is as true to-day as in the time of Demosthenes, and this sentiment followed out will supply the want of genius, carry its possessor onward and secure for him reputation glorious as noble and lasting as glorious.

Classmates, we have spoken only of intellectual acquisitions. We must add to your scholastic the social, the compassion and bless the world with all the example worthy of emulation, to all there must add the accumulations of moral excellence. Intellectual acquisitions alone will not be sufficient, neither will moral qualities of themselves suffice. But the two united, the grandeur and nobility of genius, combined with the compassion and humility of virtue, form the harmonious, the perfect character.

The lower box was occupied by several young ladies from Smith college, including Miss Curtis, daughter of Superintendent Curtis; Miss Jepson, daughter of Prof. Jepson; also Commissioner Moran of the board of education, also superintendent Curtis and Prof. Jepson.

WALLINGFORD.

The board of burgesses has called a special meeting of the freemen of the borough for next Tuesday afternoon and evening an appropriation of $1,800 for a sewer on Cherry street from H. Judd & Co's north line to Ward street and $2,500 for sewer on Whittlesey avenue from Ward to Prince street and to hear the report of the electric light committee.

John Bates has presented an authorized bill of $251.81 to the board of burgesses of the expenses incurred owing to the double ripper accident on Church street last winter, when his daughter was so badly injured by being run into. The matter was laid on the table to refer to the borough attorney at the next meeting of the board.

Young's horse had a lively run on Main street yesterday. While turning a corner the driver, J. G. Spenser, was thrown out the wagon, striking on his head and shoulder. He was knocked up unconscious and cared for, and soon regained consciousness and found that his injuries were not dangerous, although he was slightly lame. The horse was stopped further down street.

John Bates, who hails from New Haven and has for sometime been employed at Stanley Botsford's, has expanded the town and left quite a large

CURES THE TOBACCO
4 TO 10
OR MONEY

Use All the Tobacco
"Craving"

NARCOTI-CURE is the only remedy that cures the nerves and drives the nicotine from the system in a few days. It leaves the patient in better health than when he started, and is warranted free from any injurious ingredients.

NARCOTI-CURE is popular because it cures the craving for tobacco while under treatment. The "hankering" is gone. It is then no longer a habit.

NARCOTI-CURE is sold at the uniform price of 4 to 10 dollars per bottle, according to the directions.

Money refunded if a cure is not effected.

Gentlemen—Replying to yours of the 1st, would say that I have used tobacco for 40 years, and of late have consumed a 10-cent plug a day, besides smoking considerably. I commenced to use tobacco when I was only 11 years old, and have never been able to give up the habit until I took NARCOTI-CURE, although I have tried other so-called remedies without effect. After using your remedy four days, all "hankering" for chewing disappeared, and in four days more smoking became unpleasant. I have no further desire for the weed, and experienced no bad effects whatever. I am gaining in flesh, and feel better than I have for a long time. To all who wish to be free from the tobacco habit I would say, use NARCOTI-CURE.

Yours truly, W. N. WAITE.

Walter Hall of Curtis avenue will enter Harvard college in the fall.

"The Law of Growth" will be the subject of Rev. F. B. Marble's discourse at the Baptist prayer meeting this evening.

Rev. J. E. Whidman will deliver the address at the commencement exercises at the Cheshire Academy to-day.

Rev. S. Austin will this morning at 10 o'clock sell at the auction the grass on the Horace Austin farm.

The contract for making the alterations on the T. A. B. building has been awarded to C. F. Wooding and the plumbing work to J. H. McCormack company.

George A. Lane's condition continues to improve rapidly. His left arm has been taken out of the splints and he uses his hand quite handily. The other injuries are getting along finely. He is now strong enough to see visitors and several of his friends from here have been down to Bridgeport to call on him.

THE CONGREGATIONAL COUNCIL.
Features of the Closing Session Yesterday.

At the session of the general association of Congregational ministers, held at the Center church yesterday morning, devotional services was conducted by the moderator.

The minutes were read and the roll of delegates were completed, after which Rev. J. H. Backus read a paper on "The Ministry of the Holy Spirit." He said there were two ideas in religion, the first one was something to be taken away and the second something to give. The first was the taking away sin, the idea of John the Baptist. He said this was too austere and too much the idea of the church in the past. The second idea was the idea of Christianity, the giving of the Holy spirit, a better life spirit in the place of the old.

The next paper was by Rev. Joseph A. Nelson, his subject being, "Zeal for sin as a qualification for Pastoral office." He reviewed the history of the men who were successful in winning souls and spoke of their intense zeal in their work. He thought there was need of more of the evangelistic spirit in our ministry to-day.

The paper was followed by an interesting discussion. Rev. Dr. Cooper criticized the idea that we were to save a soul as though it were separate from the whole man. Rev. H. L. Hutchins and Rev. C. A. Northrop also spoke on the subject.

Prof. Blackmer said the divine order is first in discipline, then to baptize them and finally to send them out to work.

Following the discussion Rev. Mr. Moore of Hartford read statistics showing the growth of the churches for the last thirty-six years.

President Dwight then addressed the association, saying that he was pleased to welcome them here in behalf of the university.

A vote of thanks was then given the moderator and the churches for their hospitality.

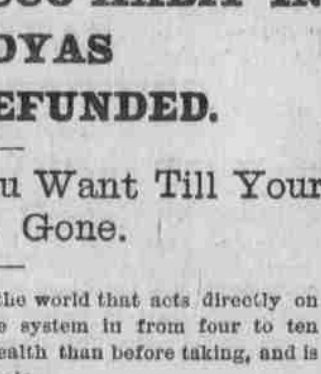

Rev. Dr. Smyth was then called upon to respond to remarks concerning his work in civic reform. After his remarks the association adjourned.

THE YALE LAW SCHOOL.
Graduation Exercises at Battell Chapel.

The Alumni's Reunion and Collation.

The law school graduation exercises will be held this year in Battell chapel Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock instead of at Center church. The address will be delivered by Hon. Henry B. Brown, LL. D., Yale '56, of Washington, C. His subject will be "The Twentieth Century."

Stocks Were Irregular and the Transactions Were Small.
 New York, June 19.—Stocks were irregular again to-day and the transactions were on a smaller scale. In today's total Sugar figured for nearly 57,000 shares and the stock was a conspicuous feature of the trading. The price advanced to and closed at 11 1/2% gain of 1/4 per cent. on the day. A firm said to enjoy the confidence of investors was the heaviest buyer, and was reported in trade circles that the company was a large holder of raw sugar.

In view of troubles in Cuba this was considered an important point by the bulls on the stock, who were predicting all higher figures.

Lumbered oil was in better demand than of late and rose 1/4 to 3/8%. Reactions, however, carried the price back to 20. Chicago Gas, Tobacco and General Electric were quiet. Distillers first rose to 1 1/2% and then rose to 1 3/4%, and left at 1 1/2%. The railway list was inclined to weakness at times, the strength the sterling exchange market and London selling of St. Paul and Louisville and Nashville having induced the professional traders to sell for a turn. Sellers operators made but little impression on these prices as they are unable for over long stock.

There were a few strong features to the railway list, notably Lake Shore, Missouri Pacific, Reading, Wheeling and Lake Erie and New England. Lake Shore sold up to 14 1/2% and New England 14 1/2%. Lake Shore advanced on instant buying and Missouri Pacific the improved prospects of the company because of the proposed funding its floating debt. Reading's firmness was due in a measure to an impression cast on the return of J. Pierpont Morgan measures will be taken to re-establish the anthracite coal trade on a pay-as-basis.

Speculation closed about steady in the net changes for the day showed a rise of 1 1/4% per cent. in the usually active list. Sugar, New Jersey Central, Manhattan and Reading, however, were 1/4% per cent.

Bonds were strong. Transactions were 32,000.
